Letter of Solidarity

Dear friends and colleagues of Polish Media Association,

Since the outbreak of the novel coronavirus disease (COVID-19) in China, Polish Media Association has expressed solidarity and offered strong support and help to China in our difficult times, which speaks volumes about the deep friendship between our two associations as well as the peoples of our two countries. The current situation of epidemic prevention and control in China continues to improve, which would have been impossible if not for the valuable support of the international community, including that of your organization and your country. We will always cherish this precious friendship.

In the face of the current COVID-19 outbreak in Poland, we can really relate to the grim situation and the pressure of epidemic prevention and control that you are under right now. The All-China Journalists Association would like to extend solidarity and best wishes to your people and colleagues of the press. We believe that through the efforts of people from all sectors of the society in your country and the support of the international community, Poland is bound to defeat the COVID-19 epidemic.

This epidemic makes us feel more than ever that human society is a community with a shared future. In the face of global challenges, all countries should look out for each other. At this critical moment, we are willing to stand firmly with your organization to ensure that media organizations can make their due contribution to the fight against the epidemic. The epidemic is only temporary. Like the rainbow after a storm, our exchanges and cooperation will be even closer after the epidemic.

Yours Sincerely,

The All-China Journalists Association
